Why Choose SJCCS For Your Child?

Because in Early Adolescence your Middle School Age Child is:

- Changing physically, emotionally, intellectually, socially, spiritually, and experiencing a wide range of quickly changing emotions and attitudes.

SJCCS provides positive teachers and adult mentors that truly understand the physical, intellectual, emotional, social, and spiritual development of early adolescents.
- Beginning to see the relationships and making connections among similar concepts and experiences in their knowledge base.

SJCCS offers a rigorous academic curriculum thematically based on universal ideals and Catholic virtues so that students can begin to make connections across the curriculum.
- Questioning, “Who am I?” “What is my purpose on earth?”

SJCCS provides activities for strong identity development as students explore their own purpose in God’s world—creatively and spiritually. An emphasis on each student’s unique gifts helps each to realize his/her full potential.
- Desiring to test the skills that have been acquired in younger grades.

SJCCS integrates real world applications through service to the Church and community and through running a school-based enterprise.
- Thinking logically and pragmatically.

SJCCS develops critical thinking, organizational, and study skills in our Middle School students. We introduce classical logic as part of our curriculum to help your child develop Faith and Reason.
- Developing close peer relationships, and may neglect family members.

SJCCS promotes positive social situations with peers and continued family interaction through social and religious activities planned by the students for their families.

Contending with: “hero-type worship” .

As young people are faced with the glamour of “celebrity heroes” who often offer questionable benchmarks for daily living, SJCCS offers students a “Hero’s Journey” of faith and experience as they study God’s Plan for our Salvation and the study of His creation. Through the life of Jesus and the lives of the Saints, our students will understand true heroes and prepare for their own personal journey of Faith.
